Package Tour Workshop Feb 1

RICHMOND — New methods of improving Virginia's position in the foreign and domestic travel markets will be explored at the State's first conference on package tours to be held Tuesday, Feb. 1 here at the Hotel John Marshall.

The daylong workshop will bring together Virginia's travel industry leaders with a panel of nationally recognized representatives of the major airlines, car rental services, surface transportation companies, tour operators, wholesalers and travel agents to explore ways of creating package tours of Virginia that can be sold both here and abroad.

Jointly sponsoring the Conference are the Virginia State Travel Service, Virginia Chamber of Commerce, Virginia Travel Council, Virginia Hotel and Motel Association and the Virginia Motel Association.

Governor Holton is expected to deliver the keynote address. The Honorable C. Langhorne Washburn, Assistant Secretary of Commerce and head of the United States Travel Service, will be the luncheon speaker and Mr. Joel Abels, editor and publisher of Travel Trade Magazine will serve as conference moderator.

Panelists include: Mr. W. G. McGee, Vice President of Sales, Piedmont Airlines, Winston-Salem,N.C.; Mr. William Sheridan, Tour Sales Manager, Avis Rent A Car System, Garden City, N.Y.; Mr. V. R. Stephens, President, Greyhound Highway Tours, Phoenix, Arizona; Mr. Larry Austin, President of Austin Travel Corporation, Hicksville, L.I., New York; Mr. Joseph Casser, Vice President of Operations, Casser Tours, New York City; Mr. Joseph Rotante, President, Circle Travel Service, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Mr. Ray D. Slavin, President, Camino Tours, New York City. Accepted tances from three additional panelists are expected.

Package tours, long favored as the most practical, inexpensive method used by Americans visiting abroad, have been growing in popularity for domestic travel. Package tours are actually put together by combining the resources of various travel attractions and accommodations and presenting them in convenient form, with a single price tag, for sale by travel agents and group tour operators.

The State of Virginia's travel industry accounts for an estimated $1 billion annually and ranks second only to manufacturing as a source of revenue to The Commonwealth. Approximately 44 million people visit Virginia each year for business and pleasure.

Big Tree Search Nets 51 Champions

How big can a tree grow? The answer to this question is found in the fall issue of "Virginia Forests Magazine" where the first published list of Virginia's biggest trees appears. Originated two years ago as the ' Big Tree Search," the aim of the project is to find the biggest trees, by species, in Virginia – that is, the biggest red oak, white pine, dogwood, etc.

According to "Virginia Forests Magazine," there are 51 state champion trees in all. All trees listed have been verified for measurement accuracy and positive identification by a local forester. Their "bigness' is determined by the circumference of the tree 4 1/2feet from the ground, the tree's total height, and the average crown-spread. A point system, based on these three measurements, is then used to determine the state champion tree for each species; in cases where there's less than five points difference for the two trees, the one with the larger circumference is declared the champion.

Two of the State champs also have the distinction of being Nation Champion trees - that is, they are the biggest of their species in all the 50 states and are so listed by the American Forestry Association in Washington, D. C. They are loblolly pine, and osage-orange. According to Charles Finley, VIRGINIA FORESTS' Assistant Director, and coordinator of the Big Tree Search, "Until last week Virginia had three Nation Champion trees, but our Southern red oak, whose trunk measures 25 feet in circumference, has just been dethroned by an even larger Southern red oak in Maryland. This happened after our magazine went to press."

So how do you go about nominating a big tree? Simple. Get a form from your local Virginia Tech Extension office or VIRGINIA FORESTS, Inc.; directions how to measure your tree are on the back. Then send it to VIRGINIA FORESTS, Inc. all nominations will be acknowledged, and if your tree is larger than the current state champion, we'll have a local forester help you double check the measurement to give your tree its rightful place in Virginia's Social Register of Big Trees. As Finley summed up,' More than 150 different tree species can be nominated - our list has plenty of room to grow, and we expect many of our current champions to be quickly displaced by bigger trees when people see the size of some of these current state champion trees."

Grant Awarded For Police Training

Commission Chairman, Carl D. Cress, Jr., has been informed by the Virginia Division of Justice and Crime Prevention that an Action Grant Application, in the amount of $932, prepared by the Commission's Public Safety and Criminal Justice at their meeting on January 6, 1972.

The Grant award will go to the City of Lynchburg to be used in purchasing 'SOUND-ON-SLIDE' equipment for use in implementing the Virginia Law Enforcement Officers Minimum Training Program required of all police officers hired subsequent to July 1, 1971. Such training will be provided, by the Lynchburg Police Department, to all recently appointed officers throughout the Central Virginia Planning District.

New Vice President

LYNCHBURG, VA. - December 31, 1971 . . . William H. Grimsley of Rt. 1 will join Information Systems in Los Angeles, California joined Fidelity National Bank January 1, 1972 as Vice President in charge of the Electronic Data Processing Department, according to an announcement by E. R. Harris, Jr., Fidelity President. Mr. Grimsley is replacing Richard L. Armstrong, Assistant Vice President and Manager of Data Processing, who resigned December 31.

Mr. Grimsley's primary duties with Fidelity will include coordinating and directing the bank's Electronic Data Processing resources. James R. Hughes, Jr., Vice President of Fidelity operations, stated, "We are fortunate to find someone with Bill's background and experience to provide leadership for our Data Processing Department. With the installation of our new Honeywell 6040 system next year and the challenge to derive maximum benefits from it, Bill will be vital to our future E. D. P. Planning."

A Navy veteran, Mr. Grimsley is married and has two children.

Tree-Planting

Planting a "crop" that takes from 30 to 50 years to harvest may tax the patience. But trees – the long-range crop referred to – can be one of the most important crops the American farmer can plant.

J. P. Alvis, Jr., Chairman of the Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, points out that planting trees provides many benefits – both to the farmer and urbanite. And these benefits will become more important in the future as the population grows, and demand for wood and wood products increases.

Besides the obvious benefits of tree planting – such as the production of lumber – trees help reduce flooding and erosion and help stabilize and improve water supplies, according to Mr. Alvis. They also provide many intangible benefits such as beautiful scenery, recreational opportunities and improved wildlife habitat.

"Tree planting even helps us fight pollution," the Chairman declared. He pointed out that nitrogen tends to move with water and that direct use on cropfields can cause nitrogen pollution of streams. However, if water is first diverted through grass or woods, the nitrogen is used up before the water gets to the stream.

Since tree planting and other such conservation practices benefit everyone but return farmers little or no immediate benefits, the Government, under the Rural Environment Assistance Program (REAP), shares with farmers the cost of planting trees and other soil, water, woodland and wildlife measures, Mr. Alvis pointed out.

"Much needs to be done if we are to meet the expected 80 percent increase in requirements for wood and wood products during the next 30 years," Mr. Alvis said. He pointed out that recent conservation needs study indicated that 1/2 million of the commercial forest land now needs some kind of conservation treatment – with 26 percent needing establishment or reinforcement of existing stands and 45 percent needing timber stand improvement.

Health Career Program To Be Presented

Helping students make the right career choice and stimulating interest in the health field is the dual purpose of the assembly program which will be presented by Virginia Health Careers to Appomattox County High School on February 9, 1972 at 2:15 p.m., Appomattox.

The assembly will include a motivational sound-slide presentation describing over forty health careers. There is no other career field where youth have the opportunity to make a distinctive change in the lives of so many people. Students will be given the chance to ask questions and to obtain further written information on any health career.

Virginia Health Careers, a program of the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care of Richmond, promotes health careers on a state-wide basis.

The entire focus of the program is geared toward influencing today's youth to consider-ing a health career. The organization works closely with hospitals, local health professionals, and guidance counselors.

Complete Course On 'Slow Learning'

The library at Appomattox Intermediate School (above) was extra quiet Thursday as teachers of the county had their turn at being pupils subjected to final examinations. Dr. Tom Wilson (standing, center) is the instructor for a U. Va. three-hour course, "Problems in Teaching the Slow Learner" which was concluded that day with final exams.

was final examination day for twenty teachers supervisory personnel who ended a U. Va. extension course, "Problems in Teaching Slow Learner" with Dr. Wilson of Dayton, Va., as instructor. "A lot of children rather retarded nor of average level," said Dr. Wilson. The course is designed to help teachers help the slow-learning child both in the rate and depth of his learning." Any person enrolled in the course did find a case study of an individual.

Dr. Wilson thanked Eugene Hall, director of instruction for his helpfulness and L. A. Johnson, principal of Appomattox Intermediate School, for assistance in setting up the classroom and other aid.

The following persons were enrolled in the class: Edith Dollye Forest, Franklie Barbara Haskins, Jean Hall, Harriet James, Henri-Johnson, Sallie Martin, Martin, Maurine McCorkle, Victor Meadows, Linda Bowman, Lou Rogers, Ann Sanfelli, Sam Sasnett, Jane Scruggs, Frances Shoe-Nancy Stockton, Josephine Webb, Cotenia Woods.

An important message for people who prepare their own income tax returns.

Maybe you've been cheating yourself all these years.

Every year, between January and April, millions of people sit down to do battle with Uncle Sam. Some are "self styled" accountants. Others think they can save a few dollars doing it themselves – so why not.

The sad truth is, however, no matter what their reason was for starting, many of them end the same. On the short end.

You see, when it comes to income taxes, amateurs should depend on H&R Block. We have all the facilities to help you make "income tax time" a pleasant experience. To begin with, H&R Block now has over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained personnel who are anxious to help you. They'll sit you down over a free cup of coffee and show you some things about your income tax that you might never have known existed. For example, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? And maybe you aren't aware that if your income increased last year, you may be able to save tax dollars by "income averaging."

Well, when it comes to income taxes, H&R Block is aware of just about everything because we're a company that eats, sleeps, and drinks tax returns 365 days a year.

Yes, maybe you can save a couple of bucks by doing your own return but it really may be costing you a lot more by not having your return done by H&R Block.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.
